One of the most beautiful and prominent features of the hotel grounds is the Pagoda Floating Restaurant. The unique architecture of the restaurant gives the appearance of a pagoda suspended over a miniature lake in a timeless setting of gently cascading waterfalls, lava rock and exquisite Asian sculpture.

Originally named the “House of Harmony,” the Pagoda Restaurant has come to symbolize the spirit of Hawaii’s culture and history — a sparkling mix of East, West and Polynesia.

Dining at the Pagoda is never just another meal — Warm hospitality greets you the moment you walk in — it is part of a long tradition of great food and gracious service. Artful landscaping and the shimmer of fish as they glide gracefully through the cool water are visible from any seat in the restaurant.

In the private teahouses (perfect for intimate celebrations and small meetings), the garden literally surrounds you. The soothing ambiance fills gatherings with a sense of well-being which has become a hallmark of dining at the Pagoda.

Honolulu’s landmark for island tastes — It was more than three decades ago that the Pagoda Restaurant first welcomed guests with an international menu and family-friendly style. It was a combination kama’aina and visitors immediately took to heart.

Now welcoming its third generation of diners, the Pagoda’s secret to success remains the same — flavorful, island inspired cooking and pride in treating everyone like a part of our ohana.

Morning, noon and night, the Pagoda has the answer for any appetite — Breakfast and dinner are served daily, lunch is served from Monday through Saturday. In addition to the menu, a buffet is available at lunch and dinner. On Sundays, an Ilima Award winning brunch buffet is featured.
